

Message from Editorial Desk

25th September 2025

Dear Readers, Researchers, and Contributors,

With great pleasure, we present the September issue of IJERST, offering a fresh collection of innovative research and thought leadership in engineering and sustainable technologies. This issue reflects our vision of fostering collaboration and sharing transformative scientific work that advances both theory and practical solutions.

Notably, we continue to see an encouraging trend of interdisciplinary submissions and international participation. Our growing community speaks to the rising relevance of sustainable and impactful engineering research in the present global context. We are currently in the final stages of our application for DOAJ indexing, and initiatives to further enhance peer review standards and accessibility are underway.

We express sincere gratitude to the authors, peer reviewers, and our editorial team for their tireless effort and commitment. Your contributions shape the progress and reputation of our journal.

Warm regards,

On behalf of Editorial Team
